based around the four seasons, so had winners and runners-up for each season, plus a Young Designer Award. It was great to see that the Award of Excellence and Winter winner, Ruth Bucknall, a textiles and design teacher at Wairarapa College also teaches Sam Hodgins who took away the Young Designer Award. Sam won $500, a new Brother NS-10 Computerised Sewing Machine from Sew Carterton and a week's work experience with local designer Lorraine Hall of Hall Design. None of the Executive team – Corrine Edwards, Chris Tracey, Robyn Cherry-Campbell and Vicki Waller – had ever been involved in anything like this before, so had no real idea of what was in store when the idea was formed. Corrine had been involved in an event the Crafty Latte group put

The Oversew Fashion Awards Inaugural Show – Recycling at it's best!

The 18 odd months of hard work came to fruition on the 25th August for the four member executive team. The evening, which was sold out, was a stunning success.

As quoted by Mike Jones, the Manager of the major sponsor, Wairarapa Environmental, "this sponsorship was a marriage made in recycling heaven"! Mike went on to say that Wairarapa Environmental have committed to sponsoring the show for a further two years.

The event encouraged designers to take "old" clothing and upcycle them into current fashion items. The awards were on a couple of years ago, and thought it a good idea to do something similar in the new Carterton Events Centre. The Events Centre turned out to be a perfect venue, and the TOF Awards were the first to test the catwalk style of setting. Many people gave their time freely to help the Exec team attain their dream. Volunteers pounded the streets delivering brochures, and slaved in the kitchen to make sure all were fed during rehearsals. Most of the models had never even been on a catwalk before, but were heard to say at the Volunteer thank-you evening, that they were keen and ready to go again next year!

AUTUMN

Runnerup:
Christine Chesterfield

The judges for the Awards - Lorraine Hall, Jennifer Whitty and Dr Duane McWaine – were delighted by the standard and range of creativity.

No event like this can proceed without sponsorship, which comes in many forms. It was very heartening to see how the Wairarapa businesses supported the concept.

Photographs of the night can be purchased from Photography by Catherine – 027 567 7101.

It is hoped that a video of the evening will be available soon – watch this space.
